

Declaration on the Publication Ethics of the Journal Slovenská archeológia (Slovak archaeology)

Journal Slovenská archeológia is produced since year 1953. It is widely reviewed periodic with long tradition. This journal publishes scientific articles about most important archaeological finds and major problems concerning prehistory, protohistory and middle ages in Slovakia and central Europe.

The editorial board of the journal Slovenská archeológia is aware of the need of the integrity of scientific publications and of the observation of ethical criteria in scientific research and publication.

The editorial board of Slovenská archeológia takes full responsibility for a quality and integrity of the content published in the journal. It sees to it that the journal publishes positively authorised original scientific works, adopts measures preventing plagiarism and expects the same acting also from the authors and reviewers. It enables freedom of scholarly opinion and discussion.

Editors of Slovenská archeológia are therefore fully identified with the principles of publication ethics declared and published on the pages of Committee on Publication Ethics, resulting from the 2nd World Conference on Research Integrity which took place in July 2010 in Singapore (Responsible research publication position statement /E.
